Robinson & Cole Hosts Annual Boston Women's Networking Event

BOSTON, MA (October 27, 2011) – The Women's Initiative of Robinson & Cole's Boston Office held its Annual Women's Fall Networking Event at Boston's Union Club on October 18, 2011. Author and award-winning Boston Globe columnist and reporter Bella English led the discussion as the Divas Uncorked told the story of how the group initially came together over a love of wine and how that transformed into a thriving enterprise. Since 1998, the founders of Divas Uncorked have helped many women develop an enhanced appreciation of wine and a greater confidence in making wine selections. A particularly meaningful aspect of this annual event to all involved is its charitable element. Thanks to the generous support of the attendees, the event raised over $1,200 for the Divas charity of choice, the Island Food Pantry of Martha's Vineyard, whose mission is to help year-round island residents in need. Please visit www.islandfoodpantry.org for more information.

More than 60 professional women attending the event, including business owners, in-house counsel, bankers, private equity directors, accountants, brokers, and professional service providers. The discussion was lively and the networking plentiful. The key theme of the evening was that a strong support system comprised of family, many different mentors, and, most important, great girlfriends helped get the Divas to the successful positions they hold today.
