Hartford Symphony Orchestra Elects Bruce B. Barth to Board of Directors

HARTFORD, CT (November 15, 2013) – The Hartford Symphony Orchestra has elected Bruce B. Barth to its Board of Directors.

The Hartford Symphony Orchestra is celebrating its 70th anniversary, which spans the 2013 to 2014 season. Its mission is to perform live orchestral music of the highest quality for continually expanding audiences and, through its educational programs, to increase the understanding and enjoyment of that music by residents in Connecticut. The Hartford Symphony Orchestra, presenting more than 100 concerts annually to audiences numbering approximately 130,000, offers a broad spectrum of musical activities to engage, educate, enliven, and enrich the community and believes in the profound and transforming experience of living music.

Mr. Barth is head of the firm's Employee Benefits and Compensation Group and chair of its Tax Section. He focuses his practice on representing employers with respect to retirement and welfare benefits, executive compensation, and benefits issues in corporate transactions.
