Connecticut Bar Association Honors Edward J. Heath with Pro Bono Award for Work with Veterans

HARTFORD, CT (June 12, 2012) – Robinson & Cole litigation partner and chair of the firm’s Pro Bono Committee, Edward J. Heath, received the 2012 Pro Bono Award from the Connecticut Bar Association for his work in 2011.

Mr. Heath was presented the award at the Connecticut Bar Association’s annual luncheon on June 11, 2012, at the Connecticut Convention Center along with four other deserving honorees. Connecticut Governor Dannel P. Malloy was the keynote speaker at the event.

The Connecticut Veterans Legal Center nominated Mr. Heath for the award for his tireless work on behalf of the center’s clients. His efforts have assisted veterans recovering from homelessness and mental illness overcome legal obstacles relating to housing, health care, and income since 2009. His efforts have saved several veterans from eviction and foreclosure.

Mr. Heath has encouraged other attorneys at the firm to assist in pro bono matters for the center, making the firm a reliable and responsive resource for the center and the veterans it serves. He also helped increase the Connecticut Veterans Legal Center’s access to other corporate and governmental partners.
