Robinson+Cole Launches HigherEdWire – News for legal counsel

LinkedIn Group to serve as forum for discussing issues affecting colleges and universities

“Colleges and universities face legal issues in a variety of areas that continually change,” said Megan R. Naughton, co-chair of the firm’s Immigration Group. “Our education team monitors the pressing developments faced by educational institutions, and we wanted to create a source to share those updates on developing stories and trends that also encourages dialogue with those in the industry. LinkedIn provides that platform.”

About Robinson+Cole’s Education Practice

Robinson+Cole regularly serves as outside counsel, providing advisory, transactional, and litigation services to meet the needs unique to educational institutions, from large universities and midsize colleges to independent schools. We provide legal services to educational institutions in a broad range of practice areas that shape the student, faculty, and employee experience.
