Elizabeth Wright Recognized by ENR New England as a “Top Young Professional”

BOSTON, MA (July 25, 2017) – Engineering News-Record (ENR) New England, a weekly publication that provides construction news and information to industry professionals worldwide, recognized Robinson+Cole lawyer Elizabeth K. Wright in its annual class of “Top Young Professionals” for 2017. Ms. Wright is a member of Robinson+Cole’s Construction Group.

Ms. Wright handles all aspects of construction-related contract issues and litigation. She brings a strong resolution and problem solving focus to her practice due to her education and experience as a mediator. In addition to her practice, Ms. Wright serves on the board of directors and as co-chair of the programs committee for the Connecticut chapter of Professional Women in Construction, and on the membership committee of CREW-Boston. She also participates in a pro bono program sponsored by the Massachusetts Middlesex District Attorney’s Office, in which she represents victims of domestic violence seeking restraining orders.

Ms. Wright was one of just nine construction industry professionals from across New England to receive the recognition, which was given for “leadership, industry work and community service.” The honorees are profiled in the July 24, 2017, edition of Engineering News-Record New England.
