Robinson+Cole Lawyer Honored During 100 Women of Color Gala

HARTFORD, CT (April 3, 2018) – Robinson+Cole Business Litigation Group lawyer Kelly Frye Barnett was among the 2018 “100 Women of Color” recognized during an annual gala held at The Bushnell Center for Performing Arts in Hartford, Connecticut on March 16, 2018. The event recognizes the contributions made by women of color in business, education, entrepreneurship, entertainment, government, and public service and the impact they have made on the lives of people throughout the State of Connecticut and Western Massachusetts communities.

Ms. Barnett’s practice is dedicated to the representation of clients in government and internal investigations, and in all aspects of complex civil litigation. She is an active community leader and is committed to social justice issues affecting women, people of color, and children. Ms. Barnett serves on the Board of Directors for YWCA Hartford Region where she chairs the Nominating and Governance Committee. She also devotes significant time to the representation of pro bono clients, including managing and participating in Robinson+Cole’s Domestic Violence Restraining Order program, which provides free legal services to victims of domestic violence who are seeking restraining orders.

The 100 Women of Color Gala & Awards is presented by June Archer of Eleven28 Entertainment. A portion of the proceeds from the event goes to Concerned Citizens For Humanity to support programs and scholarships for the advancement of young women of color.
