Robinson+Cole Lawyer Named New Leader in the Law by the Connecticut Law Tribune

Health care lawyer Meaghan Mary Cooper receives recognition

HARTFORD, CT (May 29, 2018) – The Connecticut Law Tribune has recognized Robinson+Cole lawyer Meaghan Mary Cooper as a New Leader in the Law. She was honored at the publication's 2018 Connecticut Legal Awards "Professional Excellence" event on May 24, 2018 at The Bond Ballroom in Hartford. This distinction spotlights lawyers under the age of 40 who have excelled in the courtroom, in client service and cultivation, in service to bar associations, and in performing pro bono work or community service in a volunteer capacity.

Ms. Cooper, a member of Robinson+Cole's Health Law Group, advises hospitals, physician groups, community providers, and other health care entities on health care regulations, transactions, employment, and general corporate matters. She counsels clients in the highly regulated health care industry to ensure they are in compliance with all state and federal fraud and abuse laws and works with health care providers to ensure they comply with medical information privacy and security regulations. Ms. Cooper collaborates with health care providers on a variety of corporate transactions to help them achieve their business objectives, such as mergers and acquisitions of health systems or physician groups, joint ventures, and affiliations. She also advises her health care clients on a range of employment-related issues.

Robinson+Cole lawyer Meaghan Mary Cooper received the New Leader in the Law recognition by the Connecticut Law Tribune during the publication's 2018 Connecticut Legal Awards "Professional Excellence" event on May 24, 2018.

Ms. Cooper regularly volunteers her time in support of various nonprofit organizations. She currently serves on the Board of Directors for Interval House, Connecticut's largest domestic violence intervention and prevention agency. Ms. Cooper is also co-chair of the Community Outreach Committee for the Junior League of Hartford, whose mission is to empower women and girls in overcoming obstacles.
