Governor Dannel P. Malloy Appoints Robinson+Cole Lawyer to Superior Court Bench

Land use partner Timothy D. Bates now a Connecticut Superior Court Judge

HARTFORD, CT (June 18, 2014) – Robinson+Cole is excited to announce that land use partner Timothy D. Bates was appointed a Connecticut Superior Court judge by Governor Dannel P. Malloy. Mr. Bates is among 16 new judges selected by Governor Dannel P. Malloy to join the Superior Court.

“I am honored to be chosen by Governor Malloy,” Mr. Bates said. “While practicing law, I have always tried to be involved in the community, and sitting on the Superior Court will provide a unique opportunity to combine my legal and community service interests.”

“This is a great honor for Tim,” said John B. Lynch, Jr. Robinson+Cole managing partner. “Tim has been a great partner at the firm for many years and a leader in our New London office and the New London legal community. We will certainly miss having Tim at the firm, but are confident he will bring his calm, compassion, and keen intellect to his new responsibilities and be a wonderful judge.”
