Mr. Librandi counsels hospitals and other health care entities on transactional and regulatory matters, including acquisitions; general contracting; compliance with HIPAA, the Stark law, and the anti-kickback statute (and state law equivalents); and medical staff policies and procedures. He also advises clients from various industries on technology-related matters, including online privacy, data security, and social media practices. Prior to joining Robinson+Cole, Mr. Librandi was affiliated with Levett Rockwood P.C. and Cummings & Lockwood LLC. He earned his J.D. from Fordham University School of Law and his B.A., with distinction, in political science from Yale University. He is admitted to practice law in Connecticut and New York.

OUR HEALTH LAW PRACTICE

Robinson+Cole's Health Law Group consists of a team of experienced health care lawyers trained to advise clients on meeting business objectives within the confines of a complicated legal and regulatory environment. We represent the spectrum of health care clients, including hospitals, long-term care facilities, provider networks, durable medical equipment suppliers, ambulatory surgical centers, physicians and other individual providers, home health care agencies, clinics, and outpatient facilities. Our team comprises a large group of focused health care lawyers, supported by lawyers from the firm's corporate, finance, tax, tax-exempt organizations, emerging technologies, intellectual property, litigation, immigration, labor and employment, benefits, and real property practice areas.
