CYBERSECURITY

Chicago Public Schools Notifying Students and Staff of Vendor's Ransomware Attack

The Chicago Public School system is in the process of notifying students, families and some current and former employees that their personal information was compromised as a result of a ransomware attack against a technology vendor, Battelle for Kids. Read more

ENFORCEMENT + LITIGATION

Data Breach Class Action Against Radiology Companies Dismissed for Lack of Standing

Last week, New York federal judge Vincent L. Bricetti dismissed a data breach class action against Northeast Radiology PC (northeast) and Alliance HealthCare Services (Alliance) because the plaintiffs failed to allege a cognizable injury. Read more

Voiceprints and Biometric Litigation

According to a report published in March 2022 by Global Market Insights Inc., the global market valuation for voice recognition technology will reach approximately $10 billion by 2028. As we know, many employers prefer and are already using (or considering) voice-powered timekeeping systems over fingerprints, and consumers are using voiceprint technology for health care apps, banking apps (and telephone systems), and hands-free vehicle use. Small Businesses Don't Recognize Risk of Cyber-Attack Despite Repeated Warnings

CNBC surveys over 2,000 small businesses each quarter to get their thoughts on the overall business environment and their small business' health. According to the latest CNBC/SurveyMonkey Small Business Survey, despite repeated warnings by the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency and the FBI that U.S.-based businesses are at an increased risk of a cyber-attack following Russia's invasion of Ukraine, small business owners do not believe that it is an actual risk that will affect them, and they are not prepared for an attack. The latest survey shows that only five percent of small business owners reported cybersecurity to be the biggest risk to their company. Read more

PRIVACY TIP #333

Chatbots Used to Steal Credentials

Many companies rely on automated chatbots, a popularly-growing form of data collection, but some scammers are using this technology as a way to seemingly legitimize phishing attempts. This week's Privacy Tip discusses some of the techniques being used. Read more
