Leveraging Knowledge to Manage Your Data Risks

CYBERSECURITY

Ironic Justice: WeLeakInfo Users' Information Compromised

In the category of “you can’t make this up, but satisfyingly ironic,” it was recently reported that criminals who used the WeLeakInfo database to buy stolen credentials of individuals have had their own information compromised. It’s about time criminals get their just reward. Why would hackers treat other hackers any differently than the rest of us? Read more

Molson-Coors Discloses Cybersecurity Incident that Affected Production in 8-K Filing

Manufacturers of products often are not prepared for or aware that cybersecurity incidents can disrupt production and distribution of products. A recent filing by Molson-Coors Beverage Company illustrates that manufacturers face similar cybersecurity risks as other industries. Read more

NEW + NOW

Consider Conducting a Virtual Tabletop Exercise

Cyber-hygiene and prevention are sometimes hard to fit in when there are so many vulnerabilities, zero-day attacks and third-party incidents that keep us busy every day. During the pandemic, many companies put their Incident Response Plans and tabletop exercises on the back burner as they were migrating an entire workforce from office to home, and other response requirements took priority over preparedness.
